Product Manager / Consultant - Card&Payments

Dear ladies and gentlemen

Is UBS innovative and ready to acknowledge and embrace innovation – especially if it is disrupting and might even replace common fields of the existing business?

Is UBS willing to accept innovation from a native and poorly educated challenger?
I don't have the required education, nor any expertise and documented achievements in a similar role. It will take some guts to invite me and see if I can deliver what I promise.

I'm even open to showcase my capabilities for ideation as well as transformation in real life products. For example by participating in a workshop or sprint at no cost. Idea, test, build.

The many tasks around the innovation process I can fulfill easily or with a little learning on the job. My vast experience and possibly knowledge from past roles will assist me well.

I hope your appetite for risk is big enough to test or see me and look forward to your invitation.

Kind regards

Dario Miglioretto
